

Ensuring the future of our public library

Join our Carnegie Society

The name "Carnegie Society" pays tribute to the Fort Smith Public Library's rich history and beginnings in 1908 as the Carnegie City Library, funded in large part by a grant from steel magnate Andrew Carnegie's foundation.

Established in 2010, the Endowment's Carnegie Society is composed of individuals who have chosen to include the FSPL Endowment Trust in their estate plan or have made a substantial gift to the Endowment.

Through their membership, Carnegie Society members demonstrate their support for and commitment to the stability and future growth of our public library.

Provisions in an estate plan can include Charitable Bequest for the Library included in a will.

For more information on being a part of the Carnegie Society, or if you have made provisions for the endowment in your estate plan, please let us know.

Contact the endowment office at 479-783-0229, ext: 1142 or clong@fortsmithlibrary.org.

Thank you for your help in keeping our library one of the finest in our area and strengthening our community.
